Doors of Diplomacy Open to Consideration of Peace

representatives of the central powers reserving the same right.

Regarding guarantees the entente will require for the future and the general subject of reparation, German diplomats were sure their government would at least be willing to enter a discussion. Germany holds to the view that if one set of belligerents brings up the subject of reparation, the other may with propriety do so, and that she would have claim for damage in Poland, Galicia and East Prussia, which have suffered from the armies of the entente. However, Germany is represented as perfectly willing to discuss in a conference any and all subjects relating to compensation, and it was pointed out that it was cheaper for any belligerent or set of belligerents to make reparation than to continue the war, at least until next fall, when, it already has been announced, Germany again will offer to enter peace negotiations, should the present efforts fail.

The reiteration in Lloyd George's speech of Bethmann-Hollweg's demand for guarantees of a peace that should be permanent centered attention again on what each party considers might insure such guarantees. Partial universal disarmament has been mentioned at the German embassy here in dispatches from Berlin, while Lloyd George hinted at the substitution of popular for secret diplomacy.

The allied emphasis on reparation is regarded by American officials as one of the stumbling blocks in the negotiations at present, for it is feared that Germany is in no mood to do more than abandon some of her military conquests.

No clear statement has been made as to what is meant by reparation, but it is assumed that with the allies it looks forward to the restoration of the devastated parts of France, Belgium, Poland and Serbia.

The subject of guarantees for the future is regarded by German officials here as being so intricate as being impossible of solution without lengthy conferences.

Guarantees for the future and the British premier's remarks regarding Prussian militarism were considered in German quarters as being somewhat related, at least in the British viewpoint. Limitation of armaments and the regulatory measures which necessarily would develop from a league to maintain and enforce peace might, it was suggested, result satisfactorily to Great Britain.

Guarantees for the future in the German viewpoint is taken to mean much more than peace terms. Guarantees, it was said, would have mutually to be assured by all the nations involved in this war, as well as the neutrals. It is contended that the European belligerents could not regulate their armament without the same regulations applying also to the neutrals, including the United States.

One of the most interesting features of the premier's speech from the American viewpoint was his reference to the nationalization of Great Britain's shipping. While just what is contemplated is not clear, it is realized that any such step might have a far reaching effect upon American commerce.

UP TO CARRANZA FOR A FINAL SAY

RESPONSIBILITY OF ACCEPTING OR REJECTING TERMS OF PROTOCOL

(By Associated Press.) PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—Secretary of the Interior Lane and his colleagues on the Mexican-American joint commission have placed upon General Carranza the responsibility of deciding whether the American government should continue its efforts to effect a satisfactory and amiable adjustment of the difficulties between the two countries and then adjourn until after the holidays.

It was made clear that there can be no mediation of the conditions on which American troops will be withdrawn from Mexico, or that the attitude of the government as outlined in the declaration of policy made by Secretary Lane when the protocol was signed at Atlantic City has not been altered.

The message of the Americans was in reply to that presented by the Mexicans when they reconvened Monday. It was believed by the Mexicans that they would receive Carranza's answer within a week or ten days and that the conferences might be resumed not later than January 2.

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

Gladys Huletto, the charming little star of "The Shine Girl," which will be shown at the Butler this evening, began her stage career at the immature age of three. A tiny part in a tiny play required her to run across the stage. She was so winsome that the audience applauded. Little Miss Huletto liked the applause. It helped her to decide to make the stage her profession. After that she was one of the little tots with De Wolf Hopper in "Wang." Then she played child parts with Bertha Kalich in the "Kreutzer Sonata" and with Nazimova in "The Doll's House."

She was also the original Tytyl in the production of "The Blue Bird." In "The Shine Girl" she is charming. Her naive manner and sweet simplicity so dominate the whole photograph that it is called another "Little Mary Sunshine," which will be so well and favorably remembered here, it being shown some few months ago. The picture is described as "The Peg-O'-My-Heart" of the screen. Miss Huletto plays a Mary Pickford part with such charm that it has received nothing but favorable comment from all the critics. Come and bring the children; they are sure to enjoy it. The preliminary reel will be a Max Figman comedy. Tomorrow, "Jaffery," featuring C. Aubrey Smith, and Pathe News.
